Branding Overview

Branding includes everything from the visual (our logo, colors and fonts) to the written (voice, tone and language choices across our communications) to the ephemeral (our mission and values).

A strong brand:

- Communicates who we are and what we promise our employees and customers.
- Sets us apart, distinguishing us and the services we provide.
- Is consistent, projecting confidence and credibility.
- Increases visibility and recognition.

Our Tagline: Elevating People (1 of 2)

What our tagline means

- At our core, the only way we can fulfill our vision is by being a human-centric company with an exceptional employee experience.
- Our values and culture need to be a consideration in everything we do, and people are the center of those components of our brand.
- Simply put, our brand is our people.
- In addition to elevating employees', customers' and passengers' experiences, we literally exist to elevate people into the air.

ELEVATING PEOPLE

Our Tagline: Elevating People (2 of 2)

How we use our tagline

- Our tagline reflects our brand identity, and we use it in our communications to connect our employees, customers and passengers more closely to the brand.
 - When using the tagline in copy, it's OK to use "Elevating People" or "Elevate People."
 - Always capitalize the "E" and "P" in the tagline.
 - Avoid overusing the tagline in a single communication, which can dilute the impact.

Voice, Tone and Writing Guidelines

Voice and Tone

Our voice

Unifi's aim is to inspire momentum, innovation and growth across our messaging. We want people to feel uplifted and motivated after talking with us. That doesn't mean using humor or being overly cheerful, which can come across as insincere. It means being clear, honest and positive in how we speak about ourselves and our business.

Active vs. passive voice

Try to maintain active voice in all communications to ensure your message is clear.

- Active voice: The subject is clearly performing the action.
 - Example: The CEO sent the email. The Station Manager replied.
- Passive voice: The action comes before the subject, or the subject is unclear.
 - Example: The email was sent. The reply was sent by the Station Manager.

Voice and Tone

Point of view

- First Person POV: The narrator is telling the story utilizing the I or “we” pronoun, includes the perspectives and opinions of the speaker. Example: “We at Unifi lead with Passion, Integrity and Empathy. Our employees are the best at providing aviation services.”
- When to Use: Prevalent most in external messaging including social media, quotes from leaders within press releases, news articles, first person testimonials used in public-facing decks, presentations, etc.
- Second Person POV: The reader is the center of the story. Example: “You would not want to work for any aviation company other than Unifi. If you have the chance to choose a career, aviation is the way to go!”
- When to Use: Most commonly used in public speaking comms – town halls, events, etc. Occasionally used in external comms like social media, website marketing messaging.
- Third Person POV: Unifi Aviation is the largest provider of aviation services in North America. The company is growing faster than ever and is currently hiring for dozens of roles at airports across the country.”
- When to Use: Legal and other formal documents pertaining to the business and its operations, press releases (except for quotes), customer facing communications

Writing Style

Associated Press (AP)

- In general, Unifi follows AP style for all communications. AP's preferred dictionary is Webster's New World College Dictionary.
- If you have a style question, visit AP Stylebook Online and check Webster's to find answers.

Our approach

- Writing should be simple and clear. Avoid lengthy and redundant words or sentences.

Capitalization (1 of 2)

Core Values: Capitalize Passion, Integrity and Empathy when referring to Unifi's Core Values. Do not capitalize when referring generally to these qualities.

Programs and initiatives: Capitalize official Unifi initiatives, including programs such as:

- Elevate from the Heart
- Sky Smiles
- Care, Intent and Respect
- Leadership Touchdown Training
- MentorME
- Summer "I'M COMMITTED" Safety Campaign
- PATHWAYS Career Hub

Capitalization (2 of 2)

Professional titles:

- Capitalize formal titles when they are used immediately before one or more names.
 - Examples: Chief Executive Officer Name wears sunglasses. Vice President of Sales Name is on the phone.
- Do not capitalize a title if it's used in a general way.
 - Examples: We elect a president every four years. She's a vice president of the company. Name and Name are directors of the organization. He's stepping into the role of senior navigator.
- Do not capitalize a title when it's set off from a name with commas.
 - Examples: The vice president, Name, was on the plane. Name, the current assistant manager, was born in Argentina.

Headlines: (Note: Exceptions may apply externally)

- Capitalize “major” words.
 - Adjectives (beautiful, large, hopeful)
 - Adverbs (forcefully, silently, hurriedly)
 - Nouns (computer, table, manuscript)
 - Pronouns (they, she, he)
 - Subordinating conjunctions (as, so, that)
 - Verbs (write, type, create)
- Capitalize the first and last words.
- Capitalize words with four or more letters (including with, into and from), according to AP style.
- Do not capitalize “minor” words:
 - Articles (a, an, the)
 - Coordinating conjunctions (and, but, for)
 - Short prepositions (at, by, in)

Punctuation (1 of 3)

Ampersands (&)

- Use ampersands only when they appear as part of a formal name (i.e., they're mandatory and/or part of a brand or title). Otherwise, use "and."

Quotes and quotation marks

- Use single quotes in headlines/titles and double quotes everywhere else.
 - Headline example: Employees Report 'Fun Time' at Staff Meeting
 - Body copy example: Earlier today, all employees said they'd had a "fun time" at the staff meeting.
- Punctuation at the end of a quote generally goes inside the quotation marks.
 - This includes when another quote is inside the quote.
 - "I'm not sure who said, 'An apple a day keeps the doctor away.'"
 - Exception: A question mark, colon or semicolon that isn't part of the quote, e.g.:
 - Did Gautam really say, "Unifi is super awesome"?
 - I'm learning more about "Unifi life": It's amazing!
 - He said he came from "the coolest place ever"; I can't confirm that's true.

Punctuation (2 of 3)

Commas

Oxford comma

- Do not use the Oxford (or serial) comma.
 - Example: We value passenger, customer and employee engagement.
- Exception: Do use the serial comma when there is another conjunction in the list (i.e., you have compound items).
 - Example: We value the experiences of passengers, customers, and employees and team members.

Other comma rules

- Introductory clauses: Use a comma to separate an introductory clause or phrase from the main clause.
 - Example: When she heard he was in town, she went to meet him.
- Conjunctions: Use a comma to separate two parts of a sentence joined by a conjunction if both parts could stand alone.
 - Example: She enjoys working at the office, but she likes to visit the stations.

Punctuation (3 of 3)

Other comma rules (Continued)

- Comma splices: Do not use a comma to join two independent clauses; doing so creates a comma splice. Instead, use a colon, semicolon or conjunction as appropriate.
 - Incorrect: She had three tasks, she finished all of them.
 - Correct:
 - Conjunction: She had three tasks, and she finished all of them.
 - Semicolon: She had three tasks; she finished all of them.
- Cities and states: When specifying a city and state, put commas around the state.
 - Example: He traveled to Orlando, Florida, to visit the team.
- Dates and years: When specifying a full date and year, put commas around the year.
 - Example: The parties signed the contract on Nov. 5, 2022, and agreed to meet later.

Other Grammar and Style Notes (1 of 2)

Numbers

- Numerals

- Spell out numbers below 10. Use numerals for 10 and above.
- Spell out any number at the beginning of a sentence.

- Times

- Do not include :00 for times at the top of the hour.
- Lowercase and include periods in “a.m.” and “p.m.”
- When writing a time range, spell out concepts like “from” and “to” or “between.” If both times fall in the same part of the day, use “a.m.” or “p.m.” only once. Use both “a.m.” and “p.m.” if the times do not fall in the same part of the day.
 - The party runs from 3 to 6 p.m.
 - The party will happen sometime between 3 and 6 p.m.
 - The party runs from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

- Dates

- Do not abbreviate days of the week.
- When a month and date appear together, abbreviate months with names longer than five letters.

– Jan. 1	– July 1
– Feb. 1	– Aug. 1
– March 1	– Sept. 1
– April 1	– Oct. 1
– May 1	– Nov. 1
– June 1	– Dec. 1
- When writing out a month, date and year, include a comma after the year, even if the rest of the sentence is not an independent clause/phrase.
 - She plans to leave July 1, 2024, to head to Spain.

Other Grammar and Style Notes (2 of 2)

Abbreviations

- Write out words or phrases first and include the abbreviation in parentheses after it. Use the abbreviation on subsequent references.
 - Example: Our most important values are Passion, Integrity and Empathy (PIE). Without PIE, we're not Unifi.
 - Exception: Do not include the abbreviation in parentheses if the term won't appear again.
